SCRAP DRIVE TO OPEN HERE NEXT MONDAY

Campaign Part of Nation-wide Move Announced
By WPB Chief

CITY TRUCKS WILL MAKE COLLECTIONS

Citizens Asked to Put Contributions Along Curbstones

To meet the nation's war needs for scrap iron and steel and other salvage materials, a new intensive drive to collect this scrap will be launched in Salem next Monday, it was announced today by the local salvage committee.

The local drive is part of a nationwide campaign announced by Donald M. Nelson, WPB chairman. Curbstone collections of the scrap materials will be made, starting next Monday morning. Service Director Frank Wilson, cooperating with the committee in this drive, has arranged to have city trucks make the collections.

Every resident of the city is requested to prepare now to have the scrap material available so it can be put out on the curb in front of homes Monday morning. Collections will be made as rapidly as possible by the city trucks.

War Needs Expanding

While collections of various types of salvage already have been made here from time to time, the expanding requirements of the war program have made it necessary to obtain much larger amounts of materials. This drive is principally for scrap iron and steel and other metals, but scrap rubber, rope and burlap also are wanted.

Every housewife can play an important part in this drive. She should carefully inspect all of her house furnishings to find out what equipment she has that has outlived its usefulness.

An old iron pot or a knife in the kitchen, the steel springs of an old upholstered chair in the attic, some discarded pipe or heating equipment in the cellar, unused wire clothes hangers in the closet—these are a few of the items that will provide pounds and pounds of scrap.

Organize County Drive

LISBON, Aug. 20.—A county-wide "salvage for victory" program was launched here last evening when city, village and township salvage chairmen met in courtroom No. 2 and heard John Dexter, assistant executive of the state salvage committee, declare that the people of the United States must be educated to the necessity of saving every bit of scrap and contributing as an essential effort toward winning the war.

Dexter cited the conquests and invasion of the enemy, and contrasted it with the little accomplished by the United States and its allies, stating that although a long way is in prospect, steel mills are already faced with dwindling scrap heaps. Hence there is an urgent need for each citizen to contribute every bit of "junk" no matter how small, which may be found upon the premises.

Dexter reported 90,000,000 tons of steel were turned out in this country in 1941. He said it is hoped to increase that total to 100,000,000 tons this year, which will be possible if the scrap collection of that metal reaches 50,000 tons. This figure is necessary, it was pointed out, because the United

Vichy Hears 10,000 Commandos Fought In Dieppe Streets

Stories of Hand-to-Hand Combat Related In French Capital; 13 British Warships Hurl Shells Into German Coast Defenses

(By Associated Press)

VICHY, Aug. 20—Stories of hand-to-hand combats in the streets of flaming Dieppe under a rain of shells from British artillery were told today in excited telephonic information which got through to Vichy from the scene of yesterday's battle.

Rough civilian estimates placed the number of Allied raiders at about 10,000, mostly Canadians, landed in 300 to 400 small boats and tank scows on the fortified beaches while 13 British warships hurled shells into the German coastal defenses.

French nurses and firemen dealt with casualties and damage while the battle raged, said the reports reaching here.

The landing boats came in a huge wave along some 12½ miles of the coast. Beaching parties of Canadians, American Rangers, De Gaulle French and British fought through barbed wire entanglements on shore and drove the Germans back into the low part of Dieppe some distance away, the reports continued.

The raiders forced an entry into the city and occupied part of the lower quarter while the tanks held back by anti-tank barriers which there was no time to destroy, aided

Dieppe Seen As Just Sample Of Future Blasts At Hitler

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, Aug. 20—New assaults on Hitler's Europe, mighty attacks to make ruined Dieppe a mere sample of what full-blown invasion will be, were predicted today with the shock troops of four nations barely ashore again after the fiercest smash yet made against the Nazis' gunned-down coast.

Power-driven barges and other vessels arrived along the home coast throughout the night, bringing the tired troops back. The last wounded Commandos were brought ashore during the morning, while squadrons of Spitfires and Hurricanes kept up their droning patrols overhead.

The Allied raiders brought back a number of German prisoners, including officers.

A Canadian officer said, "they gave in and came along quietly, which surprised us. We had thought they'd fight until the end."

That Dieppe, once a bastion of German anti-aircraft defense and a salty port for Nazi submarines, lay flaming and shell-torn was of secondary interest to the British.

What mattered was that assault forces—United States Rangers, Canadian, British and Fighting French Commandos—had stormed that coast and achieved every goal in a nine-hour battle engineered with such precision that it wound up within six minutes of schedule.

What mattered was that the Germans had been dealt a jolting blow where they had boasted they were invulnerable, that the Allies had massed fighting men and tanks and ferried them ashore at a strong-point of the Nazi defenses under cover of perhaps the greatest aerial umbrella in history.

According to federal agents, the youths reported that they stopped in a Salem tavern where they bought the marijuana. With the purchase was the information that an ounce of opiate sprinkled on the weed would make it more mellow, Derritt was quoted as telling John Q. Walton, agent in charge of the Toledo district.

The marijuanna and an opiate bottle were held as evidence.

Chief Ralph Stoffer said it was news to him when informed of the case by a reporter this morning.

POLICE WARRING ON RECKLESS DRIVERS

Motorists "crashing" red traffic lights have been the prey of police on the lookout for reckless drivers lately.

Three forfeited bonds in Mayor R. R. Johnson's court yesterday after failing to appear on charges of reckless driving.

Conner K. Mawharter of Cleveland forfeited a $15.60 bond, Donald King of Orrville a $10.60 bond and Tom Deeter of Medina, Pa., a $5 bond.

Edward Reed of Hillsdale, charged by police with reckless operation, was fined $5 and costs in the mayor's court.

M'ARTHUR'S BOMBERS HIT AT JAP SHIPS

Hammer at War Vessels Almost 400 Miles North Of Battle Area

AUSTRALIA LISTS LOSS OF CRUISER

10,000-Ton Canberra Sunk In First Stages of Solomons Fight

(By Associated Press)

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Aug. 20.—Allied bombers struck a new blow in support of United States marines fighting to dislodge the Japs from the Solomon Islands by blasting at enemy warships almost 400 miles north of the battle area, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The communiqué disclosing the attack also announced loss of the 10,000-ton Australian cruiser Canberra in the first stages of the Solomons fight.

Australian authorities listed casualties aboard the Canberra—which carried 818 men—as 84 dead and 109 wounded. Among the fatalities were the commander, Capt. Frank Getting of Sydney, and Ensign J. W. Vance of the United States Navy.

The announcement concerning the aerial assault on Jap naval units yesterday said merely that Allied heavy bombers had attacked enemy warships near Palau—a small island near Bougainville at the northern tip of the Solomons—with unknown results, and that all the raiders had returned safely.

The announcement was of particular interest, however, for it constituted the first official mention of operations against Jap naval units in the Solomon Island area since the battle in which the Canberra was lost almost two weeks ago.

In addition to the attack on the enemy naval units, allied bombers made a low altitude raid yesterday on a Jap-occupied town in Timor, far to the northwest of Australia.

The Allied raiders brought back a number of German prisoners, including officers.

A Canadian officer said, "they gave in and came along quietly, which surprised us. We had thought they'd fight until the end."

Polo Club Takes Entries For 4th Annual Horse Show

Cups, Ribbons and Equipment To Be Given As Prizes; Akron Team To Clash With Locals

Committee chairmen Earl Grate and Jack Gallatin announced today that arrangements for the Salem-Akron polo club's fourth annual horse show had been completed, although entries were still being received for the various events.

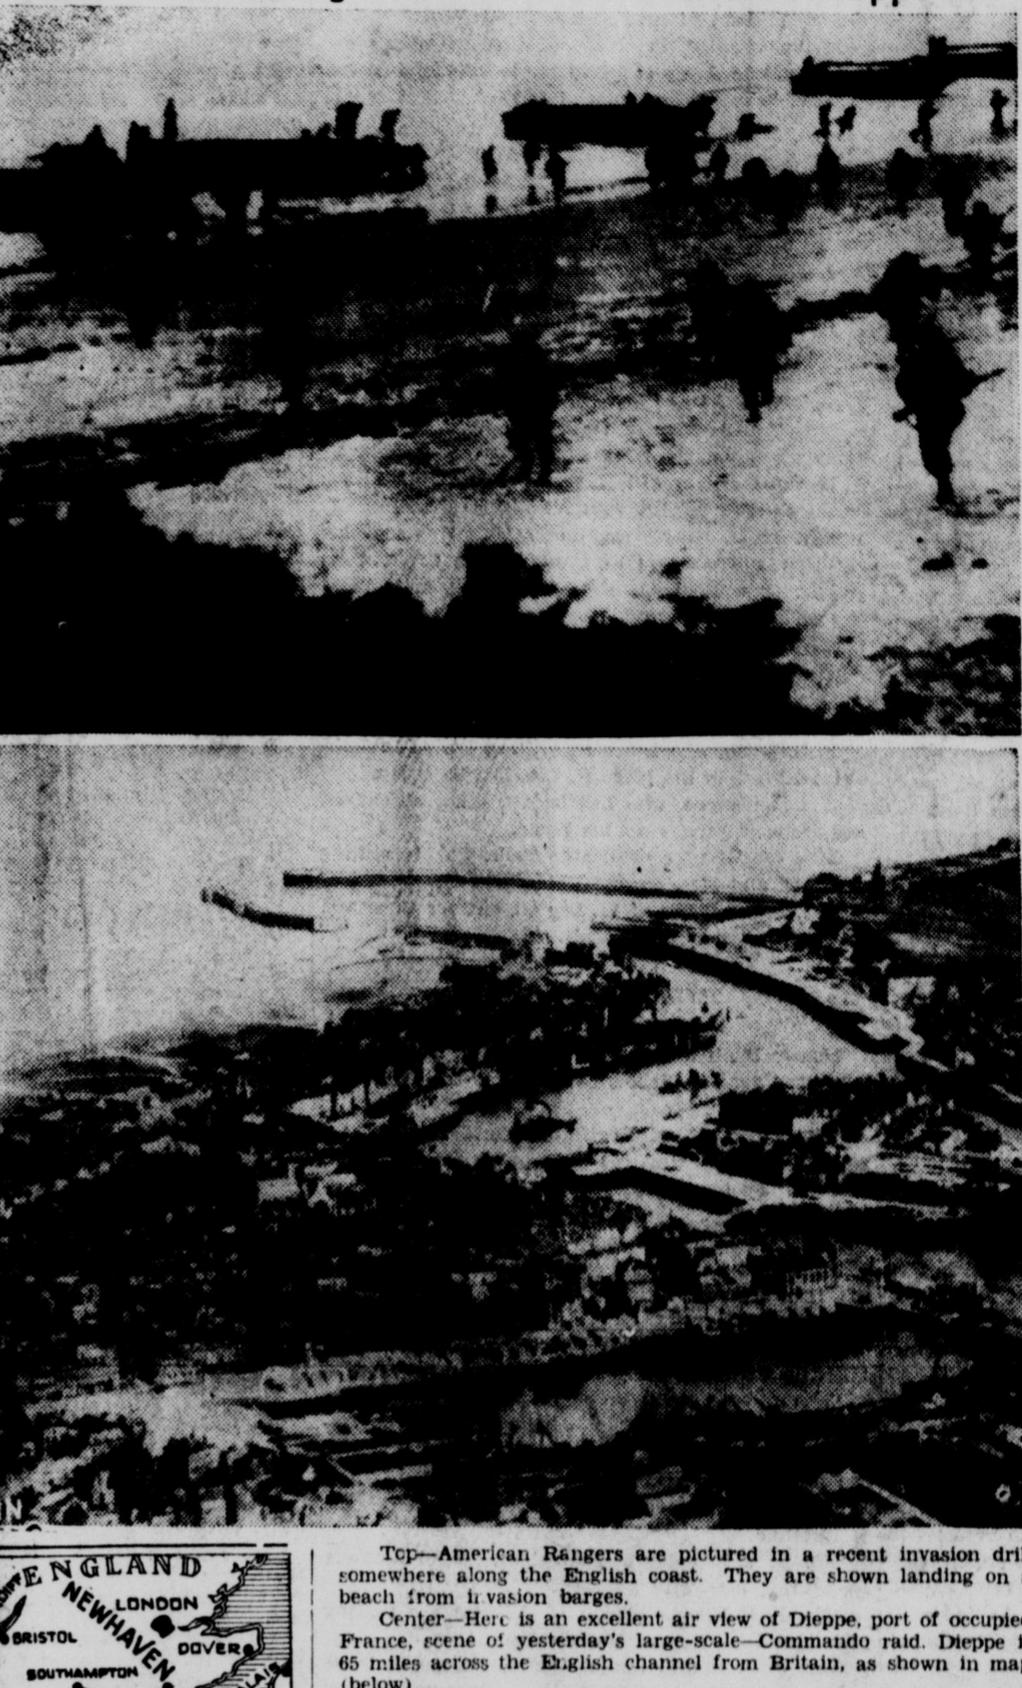

Prizes, in the form of cups, ribbons and equipment are being given this year. The awards are prominently displayed in Gallatin's Jewelry store window.

Advance ticket sales for the show and the Salem-Akron polo game scheduled for 3 p. m. indicate that a record crowd will be on hand to view the attraction. Festivities will get underway at 2:30 p. m. although the gates will be open to spectators an hour earlier.

Between the halves of the game,

OPEN SCRAP DRIVE IN LISBON FRIDAY

ABOARD A MOTOR LAUNCH OF THE ROYAL NAVY RETURNING FROM OFF DIEPPE, Aug. 19.—(Delayed)—I have just watched the RAF and the royal navy smash the Luftwaffe in the fiercest and most dramatic air and sea battle of the war in the west.

The committee plans to make a clean sweep of the village and urges all residents to scour their premises and have contributions of scrap metals, flattened tin cans, barrels, etc. ready for the town truck which will make the collection Friday between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. Each person is requested to contribute his bit, no matter how small, toward this victory drive, and to have the scrap placed along alleys adjacent to their property wherever possible, or along the curb in front of their home to facilitate the collection.

The defendants tried to bluff the officer into thinking they were innocent of any misdemeanor, but Lutschesci escorted the trio to the police station. The youths demanded to be released.

Questioning yesterday disclosed that the three had participated in seven recent burglaries in Alliance, however.

The prisoners gave their names as Robert Francis McGovern, 15, of 72 W. Main st., Alliance; Archie Lowell Graham, 17, of 29 E. Main

GOVERNMENT'S PUBLIC RELATIONS

Secretary of War Stimson's order to pare down public relations activities in his department is unique. It is contrary to the rule that everything in government must expand in scope and cost and that to shrink is to perish.

Perhaps no minority in the country is more curious about the art of public relations as practiced by government than the press, which is supposed to be the principal medium for the goodwill builders who attach themselves to the public payroll as publicity experts.

Newspapermen welcome anything that makes it easier for them to obtain and disseminate news. They are properly suspicious of anything that makes it easier for them to obtain and disseminate publicity. They know that no one ever wilfully injured himself with publicity.

Therefore, they must conclude that the purpose of public relations in government is not wholly or even primarily to help produce facts when they are needed, but to conceal and camouflage facts when they are embarrassing. Most newspapermen, recalling that the government operated for a great many years with no public relations experts at all, would favor a return to that policy. While they don't believe it can happen, they do find in Secretary Stimson's curtailment order reassuring evidence that at least one department in the government has decided there are other things more important than telling the people what it wants them to know.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN EXPERT

One of these days the President's friend and adviser, Judge Samuel I. Rosenman, is going to hand over that anxiously awaited report on how to stop inflation. A lot depends on what Judge Rosenman has been able to find out and on what Mr. Roosevelt thereafter decides to do about it.

In an entirely unofficial manner in the meantime, the American layman, who is his own expert on inflation, has reached a few conclusions. These are wholly unofficial and, therefore, unreliable. For instance; that the way to stop inflation is to keep the other fellow from doing anything to encourage it. That is obviously unreliable. It is contrary to government policy, also.

Thus, a landlord must not raise rent at the expense of a wage earner, according to a wage earner, because that would be inflation. But still according to the wage earner it is all right for wage earners to get a higher rate of wages, because that enables them to live more comfortably. It also raises hob with the landlord, but landlords are not organized.

Inflation, as is well known, is something caused by the other fellow. But he cannot be forbidden to carry on in this manner unless he is totally without voting power. Wage earners, farmers and so on, with voting power, cannot be prevented from living more comfortably, therefore, though they can be encouraged not to try to live too comfortably all at once. This is called controlled inflation, which is what we are having now and is the reason Judge Rosenman has been asked to look into the matter. It is beginning to appear as though controlled inflation might be something like holding a bear by the tail.

MARINES HAVE LANDED

In the Solomon Islands the marines have landed and everything is under control. It is good to be able to repeat that famous announcement, reminder of the short-lived era when the United States acted on its conviction that the only way to have peace was to maintain it, if necessary, by force.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters reports that the battle which began in the Solomons is continuing. The position that made Japan's bases so important is just as important to the United States and its allies. The islands are the key to the security of convoys bound for Australia, and they also are the first long step on the way north from Australia to Japan.

It is plain now why Japan has wanted them for so long—and plain why Japan should not have had them.

CONGRESSIONAL SECOND THOUGHT

While congressional second thought on payment of living allowances to dependents of service men now instead of a few hours before election day is better, it may be too late to relieve the needs of beneficiaries.

Here was a typical example of the reason for a decline in legislative prestige. Some congressmen did not know and others did not care that a handful of manipulators had postponed payment of living allowances till next November—plainly a useful date for winning friends and influencing voters.

Columnist Paul Mallon took the lead in starting a cry of "Shame!" Caught red-handed, both houses reversed themselves and voted to pay the money immediately. If they're right now, they must have been wrong in the first place. Yet, unless they had been embarrassed by exposure, their original mistake never would have been admitted.

NEW BATTLE OVER FARM PRICES SEEN

Amendment of Control law Asked by Secretary Wickard

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—A new battle over farm prices appeared in the making today following an appeal by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard for an amendment of the price control law to permit lower ceilings on agricultural products.

Wickard, reversing his previous position, urged farmers in a radio address last night to forego a provision in the price law prohibiting ceilings of less than 110 per cent of parity. Parity prices are designed to give farm products purchasing power equivalent to that of a base period, usually 1939-41.

The secretary's new stand was challenged quickly by Chainman Dulmer (D-S.C.) of the house agriculture committee, who said:

"Friends of the farmers will oppose any such change in the price law. Mr. Wickard and Mr. Henderson [Price Administrator Leon Henderson] would do farmers, consumers and the nation a real service if they would do something about cutting down on the margins and profits that middlemen and others make on farm products."

Doubts Plan

In Chicago, Earl C. Smith, vice president of the American Farm Bureau federation, expressed doubt a plan for applying price ceilings to livestock could be devised.

At the same time, he added that farmers of the midwestern region most likely would not object to removal of the 110 per cent limitation and substituting for it a provision that would restrict the placing of any ceiling below that necessary to assure an average parity price return during the particular seasonal marketing period.

In urging its repeal, Wickard said the 110 per cent limitation was being used by many other groups "to prove that farmers are asking for more than their fair share." He asserted the struggle against inflation was endangered because of "unwillingness of each great economic group to accept controls unless at the same time controls are placed on others."

He called upon farmers to lead the way toward greater stability of prices by giving up the 110 per cent parity limitation. This would mean that the government could set ceiling prices at any level it might see fit from parity upward.

Dramatic Sea and Air Battle Waged Off Shores Of France

They swept over us with every gun firing, and ours answering theirs. One climbed out of the barrage, a second wavered and slid into the sea.

We steamed through the smoke and in the early sunlight saw the burning houses of Dieppe and heard the rattle of rifle fire and the chatter of machine guns.

Ohio Listed Among States Tabbed for Gas Rationing

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—Ohio definitely is among the states which New England senators and representatives will ask federal officials to include in the gasoline rationing program. Representative Rogers (R-Mass) told the house yesterday.

One 24-year-old sub-lieutenant whistled softly at the sight and said:

"What's that line in Shakespeare about gentlemen of England now abed?" they ought to make you proud."

The first Commandos landed as we neared the French coast.

RAF bombers had sneaked across the channel to hammer German gun positions. Ahead anti-aircraft fire spouted in fountains of red tracer bullets.

Across the water we heard the rumbling crump, crump of big bombs.

The well-dressed man will wear a tin hat from this point," the lieutenant said.

As the light brightened we saw six Spitfires flying high overhead.

We were still admiring them when there was a roar of planes to port and two Focke-Wulfs attacked our convoy.

RUSSIAN FORCES TAKE INITIATIVE

Battles Develop On Four Fronts From Bryansk To Lake Ilmen

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW, Aug. 20.—The Red army has taken the initiative in battles developing on four key central Russian fronts along the 400 miles from Bryansk to Lake Ilmen while holding doggedly before Stalingrad and in the Caucasus, bat-tlefront dispatches reported today.

Centers of the Russian attack were listed as the Bryansk front, 210 miles southwest of Moscow; the salient 130 miles west of Moscow in the Vyazma area; the Kalinin-Rzhev salient, 130 miles northwest of the capital; and the Lake Ilmen front south of Leningrad.

(This was the first specific mention of Red army offensives on these fronts in Russian dispatches, although German communiques for days have told of desperate resistance there by Nazi forces hurled onto the defensive by strong Soviet attacks.)

Claim Heavy Toll

No complete details of the central campaigns were given, but the Russians said they had taken a heavy toll of garrison forces left to man the central and northern battle line while the Nazis massed their greatest strength for the Don Bend and Caucasus offensive.

The Russians apparently were striking out along this whole line in a carefully-timed series of sharp assaults.

In the south, where the Germans concentrated ever-reinforced troop and air strength, the Russians said some Axis troops had forced a crossing in the elbow of the Don in their drive upon Stalingrad, but were "completely wiped out" on the last bank.

While Red army men on the Dnepr between the Don and the Volga thus were reported to have accounted for Nazi bridgeheads, Russians withdrew again in the battle of the western Caucasus and the Kuban city of Krasnodar was left in German hands.

Launch Counter-attacks

Several Russian counterattacks were launched in the area of Ketskaya, within the Don bend 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad.

More than 2,000 Germans were reported killed and 70 tanks destroyed or burned out in action yesterday and the communique said 5,500 Germans were slain and Nazi materiel heavily damaged during the last five days about Voronezh, a battle-scarred city on the Upper Don.

The German crossing of the Don elbow, one objective of campaign launched by Field Marshal Fedor von Bock from the Kursk-Kharkov front June 28, was reported made southeast of Kletskaya.

The communique report that Soviet soldiers had killed or wounded up all who made the thrust implied

PAPERS ARE CLEARED IN JAP FLEET CASE

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—The Chicago Tribune, the New York Daily News and the Washington Times-Herald legally had a clean bill of health today after a federal grand jury investigation of their publication on June 7 of allegedly confidential naval information.

A statement by William D. Mitchell, special assistant to the attorney general, at conclusion of the five-day inquiry said:

"The grand jury considering the matter of the publication on June 7 in the Chicago Tribune and other newspapers of an article relating to the Japanese fleet in the Midway battle, has decided that no indictment should be returned."

The statement added that "the jury has considered the case fully and its conclusion that no violation of law was disclosed settles the matter."

Material for the story under investigation, which estimated the size and strength of the Japanese fleet defeated at Midway, was assembled by Stanley Johnston, Tribune war correspondent who was aboard the aircraft carrier Lexington and wrote a series of stories on the Coral Sea battle.

OHIO REPUBLICANS RE-ELECT OFFICERS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 20.—Ohio's war-time Republican platform convention, to be held here Sept. 30, will be streamlined.

It will be a one-day convention instead of the traditional two, and there will be no alternate delegates.

Thus fewer persons will be absent from jobs important to the war effort, delegates will be away from workaday tasks a shorter time and wear on automobile tires will be reduced.

The Republican state central and executive committee yesterday re-elected Ed D. Schorr of Cincinnati chairman, renamed all other officers and set the convention date. Regular convention delegates will number 350.

Schorr appointed a convention arrangements committee to draft a temporary platform and select a keynote speaker.

Its members are Edward C. Stanton of Cleveland, chairman; Fred H. Johnson of Zanesville, Miss Margaret Baker of Springfield, Mrs. Gladys B. Coffin of Cincinnati, Ward C. Cross of Ashtabula, Russ C. Meddleton of East Liverpool and J. G. Kenan of Upper Sandusky.

PLANS ACTION TO HALT SHUTDOWNS

NELSON PLANS FINISH FIGHT ON QUESTION OF HIS ADMINISTRATION

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Prompt action to forestall any war production shutdowns due to lack of materials appeared imminent today in consequence of Donald M. Nelson's newly enunciated "get tough" policy.

The production chief was expected to give his regional directors throughout the country power to issue "quickie" priority ratings to provide needed small quantities of materials or parts.

Thus holders of war contracts threatened with stoppage or curtailment of output because of an interruption in the flow of materials needed to keep going.

LIMITS ON MATERIALS

Informed officials who requested that they not be quoted by name said such a plan, if adopted, undoubtedly would put strict limits on the amount of materials at the disposal of regional officers.

Eighteen officials of AFL and CIO metal-fabricating unions were invited by the War Production Board to a conference here Monday at which raw material shortages will be discussed.

The economic outlook, published by the CIO, said shortages due to inefficient management by the steel industry had caused numerous plants to shut down.

Nelson made it clear yesterday he had taken his gloves off for a final fight on the question of his administration's handling of the war effort.

"From now on any one who crosses my path is going to have his head taken off," he said in discussing statements from congressional and other sources that the War Production Board had mis-handled its job.

HITS "LOOSE TALK"

Nelson denounced "loose talk" about wholesale plant shutdowns and flatly contradicted recent reports that as many as 1,000 plants might suffer slowdowns or shutdowns because of lack of steel, copper, aluminum and other materials.

"I can see the way ahead and we're going to come out on top," he said. "There'll be no abhis. I'm sick of them."

Two reports current in Washington were believed to have netted the production chief particularly. One was the oft-published theme that the army was ready to take over control of the wartime industrial economy if civilian authority faltered. The other was that Nelson was too lenient with his subordinates.

Following a farm-to-farm canvass, a truck will call for the salvage material which will be hauled to the local official salvage depot for the community. It will then be sold to salvage dealers as soon as possible in order that the collection might reach the mills where the material is badly needed for defense efforts.

The salvage drive is already under way in some parts of the country, but figures as to the amount are not available, although chairmen report the early efforts have been very gratifying.

st., and Richard Kaigler, 19, of Alliance. The last two named have been implicated in previous crimes. Alliance police said.

After signing confessions in the presence of Salem and Alliance police, the boys were returned to Alliance for prosecution.

Places in Alliance which they admitted burglarizing included Linder's hardware, the England drug store, Town tavern, Bergert and Noble drug store, Evergreen fruit market, an apartment occupied by John Ryerson and a former Salem man.

The three men said they hitched to Salem Tuesday night and walked through the business district before deciding to break into the bus station. Graham, one of the boys, broke a rear window at the station before the lights of the taxi frightened the trio away.

COAST CITIES DARK AS DIM-OUT BEGINS

SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—Booming wartime cities the length of America's Pacific coast dimmed bright lights for the duration last midnight under a military order designed to blot out a back-drop of glare against which lurking enemy submarines could silhouette ship.

The shadow of war blanketed a coastal strip at places 150 miles wide from Canada to Mexico—affecting nine million persons in 100,000 square miles.

Every light which faced the ocean or threw a glow into the sky was ordered dimmed or shaded. Most outdoor lights were extinguished altogether.

Ohio Fans Puzzled By Sudden Collapse Of Indians, Reds

MARCHILDON MIXES PITCHES, BECOMES EFFECTIVE HURLER

Canadian Ace Has Scored 13 Wins For Connie Mack This Year

No, you'd hardly expect a Philadelphia Athletics' pitcher to lead the American league in victories this year, but that's what Phil Marchildon may do—and if you can overlook the fact that the A's have less offensive punch than a brigade of Benito's best, then you'll find little mystery in the situation, because Phil has what it takes.

The 26-year-old good looking Canadian is expecting his Dominion army call but has an idea it won't come before the end of the season. And if he travels at his present clip he'll have a good chance of winding up with at least 18 victories. Up until Aug. 10 he was tied with the Yankees' Spud Chandler at 13 victories.

Marchildon, who won 10 and lost 15 with the A's last year (not bad . . . not bad) gained effectiveness this season, and thinks it has been the result of studious sessions with Earl Brucker, veteran Philadelphia catcher and coach.

Using New Stuff

"When I was younger," Marchildon explains, "I worked in the nickel mines up in Ontario and it tightened up my muscles. So I had difficulty developing a smooth movement and I was giving away my pitches. Well, Brucker has been working with me spotting my unconscious give-away and taking the kinks out of my delivery."

"I've also been working with some different stuff this year," Marchildon adds. "I've got a better change of pace, and a fork ball in addition to my two curves, fast, and slow, and my regular fast ball. I'm learning to mix 'em up."

This is only Marchildon's second season in the big leagues, which means he has caught on pretty fast. He came to the A's from the Toronto Maple Leafs, where he had been a discovery of the veteran Dan Howley. Howley had heard of the reputation being made by a young sandlotter named Marchildon and he did a little investigating and signed him up.

That was in 1938, and Marchildon in the next two seasons stamped himself as one of the most promising young flingers in the International league.

Pitched In Mining League

An all-around athlete, the young Canadian, who stands 5 feet 10 and is stockily built, played football and hockey at St. Michael's college in Toronto. He recalls he was the only native Canadian on the football team; the rest were American boys.

He left school to take a job in the nickel mines and did a little pitching in a mining league.

The load he must carry with the A's is all the more strenuous because he has to bear down on every pitch. There's little chance of his mates getting him off the hook when he has signed up with the navy.

STARS HAND BLUE SOX ANOTHER LOSS

Dick Bartchy Muffles Sox Bats With Five Hits; Baker Is Star

The Salem Blue Hose bowed to the Sandlot All-Stars for the third straight time Wednesday, 9-3, at Centennial park.

Dick Bartchy allowed the Sox but five scattered hits and only two of these, Dan Kenst's homer and Paul Wukotich's triple, amounted to anything. Meanwhile, the All Stars tagged George Wukotich and Al Catios for nine blows and made all of them count heavily.

In the third inning the Stars plated seven runs, most of which were unearned. It was in this inning that the majority of the Blue Sox 16 errors cropped up to make things worrisome. Single tallies in the fourth and sixth frame finished the stars' scoring.

Bob Ruffing, Blue Sox first baseman, was the game's hard luck boy as he came up twice to stifle a half-hearted rally by hitting into a fast double play.

The Blue Sox came through with two runs in the fourth and one in sixth to escape a worse defeat. The game was called at the end of the sixth by Umpire Jim Jackson because of darkness.

Lowell Baker socked out three hits in four trips up to play the lead role in backing up Bartchy's hurling while "Howdy" Keri weighed in with two safeties. Mel Wukotich led the Sox attack with two infield hits in three times up.

CHAPTER FORTY-THREE
Smith knew he had been growing too fond of that girl; gradually but insidiously the feeling had been growing in him, so that soon the only freedom he could have found would have been either away from her or with her altogether; it would soon have become impossible to keep on seeing her continually and meaninglessly in trains, dining rooms, theater backstages; impossible much longer to have suppressed the anxieties he had already begun to feel about all the chance contacts of their daily lives—whether she would be in or out at a certain hour, or would happen to sit next to him here or there, or who the man was who met and talked with her so long after the show. Such things had not mattered to him at first, partly because he had been so humble about himself—why should she bother about him at all, what had he to offer? She loved life, she loved people—be honest about it, she loved men. He had even, at first, experienced a sardonic pleasure in seeing her warm to the chance encounters that fill the spare moments of stage life—his look, as he said good-night to her when he was going home to bed and she to a party somewhere, had often contained the message—Have a good time, you've done all you can for me, the rest I must do for myself; so thank you again and good luck.

That was his message to her now, as he walked from Fulverton to Crosby Magna and heard the chime of midnight from a distant clock. But he knew that it could not have been so had he stayed with the company, so that actually his leaving was well-timed, an escape from bondage that would soon have become intolerable.

He reached Crosby Magna towards dawn—a small deserted country station on a single line. There was a time-table pasted up from which he discovered that the first train was a local to Fellingham at ten minutes past five. He had over an hour to wait, and spent it leaning against his bag on the station platform. He felt rather drowsy; it was pleasant to rest there, with the sunrise on his face. Presently he realized that a man was staring down at him.

"Waiting for the train, sir?"

"Yes."
"It's due in now. I'll get you a ticket. Where to, sir?"

"Er... Fellingham... single..."
He dragged himself to his feet and followed the man into the small booking hall.

"Fellingham, there you are, sir. Not traveling with the company this time?"

"Couldn't help recognizing you, sir—I was at the theater in Fulverton last night. Very funny indeed you was, sir—funniest bit in the whole show. Well, there's your train, sir."

He insisted on carrying Smith's bag and choosing a compartment for him, though the train was practically empty. It was, indeed, one of those trains that seem to exist for no reason at all except to wander through the English countryside at hours when no one wants to travel, stopping here and there at places where no one could possibly have any business, especially on a Sunday morning, and all with an air of utter vagrancy, that rose rather steeply at one point into two rounded summits; you could not tell which was the higher, but neither was very high—maybe seven or eight hundred feet, with a saucer-shaped hollow between. Just under the hill the roofs of a village showed amongst the trees, but the train turned capriciously away from it, choosing to stop at a station called Rolyott that was nothing but a shed in the middle of fields. He got out there, handing his ticket to the solitary porter, who stared at it for a moment and then said something about Fellingham being three stations further on.

In answer, Smith smiled and said that was all right, and as the train moved off again the redheaded boy who was always looking out of the window saw him smiling and smiled back. That made him feel suddenly cheerful. And besides, the air was warm, blended with scents of hay and flowers, and the tree-hidden village looked tempting even at the end of a long road; he set out, walking briskly. A few hundred yards from the station, withdrawn into a hedge so that no one could see it save by search or chance, a broken signpost pointed to the ground, and he had to climb through nettles to decipher its stained and weather-worn letters: "To Beachings Over, 1 Mile."

He walked on, murmuring the name to himself, as he always did with names—Beachings Over, make the trail too easy, especially after the porter at Crosby Magna had recognized him—unfortunate, that had been. He would get out at some intermediate station and make his way elsewhere across country.

The train had stopped again by the time the hills became clear—a station called Worling. He thought this would do as well as any other, and was just about to jump down to the platform when his bag flew open, spilling some of the contents to the floor of the compartment; by the time he had them repacked the train was off again. But it did not really matter; one place was as good as another.

The train cantered on, like horses now more than cattle, steadily, at a good pace, as if anxious to reach some friendly stable; the track wound more closely into the uplands and soon entered a long shallow valley under a ridge that rose rather steeply at one point into two rounded summits; you could not tell which was the higher, but neither was very high—maybe seven or eight hundred feet, with a saucer-shaped hollow between. Just under the hill the roofs of a village showed amongst the trees, but the train turned capriciously away from it, choosing to stop at a station called Rolyott that was nothing but a shed in the middle of fields. He got out there, handing his ticket to the solitary porter, who stared at it for a moment and then said something about Fellingham being three stations further on.

In answer, Smith smiled and said that was all right, and as the train moved off again the redheaded boy who was always looking out of the window saw him smiling and smiled back. That made him feel suddenly cheerful. And besides, the air was warm, blended with scents of hay and flowers, and the tree-hidden village looked tempting even at the end of a long road; he set out, walking briskly. A few hundred yards from the station, withdrawn into a hedge so that no one could see it save by search or chance, a broken signpost pointed to the ground, and he had to climb through nettles to decipher its stained and weather-worn letters: "To Beachings Over, 1 Mile."

He walked on, murmuring the name to himself, as he always did with names—Beachings Over,

Beachings Over, and then Beachings Over came into view—a group of gray old cottages fronting a stream over which slabs of stone made bridges. There was a square-towered church as well, a public house called for some undiscoverable reason the "Reindeer"—a ledge in the stream where the water sparkled as it curled over green reeds. And beyond the village rose the sunlit ridge—one hill now quite clearly higher than the other, but only a little higher, and between them that gentle turf hollow.

He crossed one of the stone bridges. A man coming out of a house stared with friendly curiosity and said "Good morning." A fluff of wind blew a line of hollyhocks towards him. An old man was clipping a yew hedge along the vergerage wall. A sheep dog stirred in the shade and opened a cautious eye as he passed. He felt: This is home; if they will let me stay here, I shall be at peace. He turned off the road by a path towards an open field that climbed steeply. Near at hand was a cottage, with a buxom elderly woman tending the garden. "There'll be a nice view from the top this morning," she said knowingly as he came near.

"Five counties they say you can see, on a clear day." He smiled and then she said: "Leave your bag here if you like—it'll be quite safe."

"Good idea.... Thanks very much. And could I—perhaps—trouble you for a glass of water?"

"Water if you like, sir, but cider if you prefer."

"Well, yes indeed, if it's no trouble."

"No trouble at all, sir—I'll just have to go round to the stillage."

"Stillage?"

"That's where we keep it, sir, keeping that cool off the stone, you'll be surprised."

She came back with a pint-sized mug, which he drained gratefully.

"Glad you're enjoying it, sir—it's good cider, that I do say, though I brewed it myself."

He wondered if he should offer to pay her, but she saw his look of hesitation and added with swift tact: "Don't worry, sir—you're very welcome. Maybe when you've

He climbed on till the ridge was close at hand, beyond the next field and the next stone wall, the two hills curving against the sky. After a little time he reached the saddle between, and there, hidden till the last moment, lay a pool of blue water, blown into ripples under passing cloud shadows. It looked so cool he took his clothes off and bathed—there in sight of all the five counties, so it amused him to think. Then he lay in the sun till he was dry, feeling the warmth of sun and cider soaking into every nerve. Presently he dressed, found a shady spot under a tree, and closed his eyes.

The sun on his face woke him; it had moved round the sky but was near the horizon and no longer hot. His glance followed the curve of the hill and came to rest on the already graying pool; he was surprised to see a girl there, perched on a jutting rock and paddling her feet.

He watched her for a moment, quietly fitting the picture into his mind before recognition came, and with it a curious mounting anger because he suddenly knew why it was he had grown so desperately in love with her; it was because she followed him about everywhere, because, from the moment of their first meeting, she had never let him go—despite all acting and casual behavior, and false appearances. And she had followed him even to Beachings Over.

Aware that he was watching her, she turned and then came towards him, high-stepping barefoot over the grass.

"Smithy— you're really awake?

Why did you run off like that? Were you ill? What's been the matter?... The woman at the cottage said you were here said you'd left your bag, so you'd have to come down, but I didn't want to wait, and yet I have waited—hours—while you've been asleep...."

"I'm—I'm—sorry."

"For keeping me waiting? It's my fault—I could have wakened you any time, but you looked so tired and you hadn't shaved—I guess you'd been out all night somewhere."

FRIEND AND FOE!

PRESSURE IS BOTH FRIEND AND ENEMY TO TIRES.

WHEN INFLATED, EACH SQUARE INCH OF TIRE IN CONTACT WITH THE ROAD SUPPORTS CAR WEIGHT EQUAL TO THE INFLATION PRESSURE --- USUALLY ABOUT 30 POUNDS.

TIRES CONTINUALLY LOSE AIR, HOWEVER. WHEN CARS ARE NOT USED FOR LONG PERIODS, SOME TIRES MAY GO FLAT. THEN PRESSURE BECOMES AN ENEMY.

THE ENTIRE CAR WEIGHT PRESSES, THROUGH THE RIMS, ON PERHAPS ONLY TWO SQUARE INCHES OF TIRE WITH 375 TO 400 POUNDS PRESSURE PER SQUARE INCH! HAVE YOUR TIRES CHECKED WEEKLY BY YOUR PENNZIP-PENNZOIL DEALER.
